FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

TAM International Opens New Denver Sales Office
Complete Product Line Offering Available to Meet Growing Regional Needs

HOUSTON – Aug. 11, 2014 – TAM International, an independent oilfield services company providing inflatable and swellable packers, has opened a new sales office in Denver to better service the growing customer base in the region.

The new office space is located in Denver's lower downtown central business district, which puts TAM in close proximity to local operators and customers. From the Denver office, the TAM sales team will provide technical support and customer service to customers in North Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado, South Dakota and Utah.

"There is major demand for our products in this region and the new Denver office is part of an exciting growth strategy for our team," said Michael Dion, regional manager. "I am looking forward to what the future holds for TAM and I am excited to see our relationships in this region grow."

To meet customer needs in the area, sales team members will provide TAM International's complete product line offering, which includes Casing Annulus Packers, Swellable Packers, Multi-Stage Frac Systems, Cementing Sleeves, Service Tools, and Slickline Setting Tools.

The 2,797 sq. ft. office space will be custom built and is located at 1875 Lawrence St., Suite 420. For more information about TAM International, visit www.tamintl.com.
